Administrative History

In 1909, St. Ignatius College became the College of Arts and Sciences of Loyola University. The study of the Classics has always been a part of the Loyola University curriculum, as Latin and classic philosophy were required. In 1947, the Department of Classic Languages was established and included several other courses on classic philosophy. By 1966, the Department of Classic Languages was changed to the Classical Studies Department to better reflect the nature of the courses offered. The graduate program in the Classical Studies Department ended in 2004.

Scope and Content

The College of Arts and Sciences, Classical Studies Department Records consists of 4.5 linear feet spanning the years 1963 to 1978. The records include memorandums sent to faculty and staff, Faculty Council minutes, course offerings, and student event notices. Note that this collection originated in the Classical Studies Department, but the content better reflects the happenings of the entire College of Arts and Sciences, not the Classical Studies Department. Series are arranged alphabetically by subject.

Series 1: Classical Studies Department Records, 1963-1978, n.d.

This series contains records from the Classical Studies Department. The series contains committee minutes, memorandums to faculty and staff, course schedules, library acquisition lists, student event notices, and student services requests.
